Tasting Notes

No doubting the signature Island smoke and spice immediately apparent on the nose, but this is more a seductive clove and pot-pourri spice rather than medicinal coastal woodsmoke. The oak influence is more visible in the flavor with a touch of tannin and spice on the initial taste which mellows with heathery dried fruit and more pepper coming through later. The finish is long with a little dry fiery kick at the close.

PRODUCER SUMMARY

At Mossburn we only produce hand-crafted whiskies of the highest quality, selected from our own aging stock. This Blended Malt is an excellent example that illustrates the classic regional flavors of a well-balanced, complex Scotch Malt Whisky.

The master blender has chosen a number of mature whiskies from different Scottish Island distilleries that illustrate the typical smoky, phenolic maritime flavors of a traditional peated malt whisky.

These whiskies were aged in American Oak barrels prior to their initial blending and were then matured for a second period in our proprietary Mossburn Casks. These casks were first fill ex-Bourbon barrels with toasted virgin European heads which provide additional smoky spice and an increased depth. Bottled at 46% alc./vol. without any coloring or chill filtration.
