SMALL BATCH

12 YEAR OLD UMESHU CASK FINISH

Hatozaki Small Batch 12 Year Old Umesu Cask Finish is a 100% hand-crafted malt whisky, a blend of premium single malts, each aged for a minimum of 12 years in American Oak casks before being married and then further finished in bespoke barrels that previously held superior Umesu liqueur for an additional 6 months.

Without coloring or chill filtration this perfectly balanced whisky is complemented with subtle accents of sweet infused Japanese plum.

Hatozaki Small Batch 12 Year Old Umesu Cask finish has a rich profile of cereals, with iodine notes, fresh pear, apricots, and a delicate hint of malty honey. The yellow plum finish brings a lasting touch of sweetness.

The Yonezawa family's experimentation with distilling started over a century ago, in 1917, and has been part of their legacy ever since. In the build-up to their celebration of 100 years of spirit production, the company decided to replace their old stills with new copper twin pot-stills made by the famous Scottish company Forsyth's. The new facility has been designed to produce Single Malt Whisky as well as other spirits and has been named The Kaikyo Distillery after the Akashi-Kaikyo Bridge that lies in front of the distillery.

The Hatozaki Lighthouse is the oldest stone lighthouse in Japan, and has been a guide for sailors navigating the turbulent waters in the port of Akashi since 1620. It is a symbol of dependability, openness to the wider world, and trade— which enables the exchange of goods and ideas. This lighthouse serves as the perfect icon to represent Kaikyo Distillery's blended whiskies— a symbol of the rich culture of Akashi City and all it can offer the world.
